

Inter-University Doctoral Program in Educational Studies

IDAC Guide for Chairing a PhD Defence

This document was created based off the defence guidelines made by the Division of Research and Graduate Studies, Acadia University

The Examining Committee:

The Examining Committee normally will consist of the following four or five members:

- 1) External Examiner
- 2) Committee Member
- 3) Committee Member
- 4) Supervisor (s)

A Chair is appointed by the University to preside over the Examination.*

All members of the Examining Committee are expected to have read the thesis.

Role of Chair

The role of Chair is to preside over the examination to ensure that the examination is conducted following proper University procedures. The Chair is expected to ensure that:

- the candidate is treated fairly throughout the examination;
- has ample opportunity to defend the dissertation; and,
- that the candidate, alone, defends the dissertation.

The Chair has the authority to intervene in the event of inappropriate conduct.

Procedures to be followed when acting as Chair of an oral examination:

In the absence of the candidate, the Chair will:

- confirm that members of the Examining Committee have read the dissertation and are prepared to participate in the examination;
- review the procedure to be followed; and, determine an order of questioning.

Candidate's presentation and question period (open to the public)

The Chair will:

- state the Territorial Acknowledgement used by the home institution.
- acknowledge if the presentation is being recorded.
- introduce the candidate, self as Chair, and members of the Examining Committee; and,
- invite the candidate to present the dissertation in a MAXIMUM of 20 minutes; and,
- invite the Examining Committee, beginning with the External Examiner, to engage the candidate in rounds of questioning. Once committee members are satisfied that sufficient opportunity has been given to assess the candidate's defence, guests, and public present are invited to ask questions of the candidate.

Deliberation of the Examining Committee (closed to the public)

In a private session immediately following the presentation and question period, the Chair will:

- invite the Examining Committee to discuss the dissertation and defence;
- review the voting procedure with the Examining Committee;
- invite the Committee to determine the acceptability of the dissertation by majority vote; and,
- according to one of the following four assessments:

1. Unconditional pass

The External Examiner and members of the Supervisory Committee, including the Dissertation Supervisor, sign a Dissertation Defence Assessment form (Appendix 1). The candidate can submit the Dissertation, according to the home institution's guidelines, without revision.

2. Conditional pass with minor revision

The External Examiner and members of the Supervisory Committee, excluding the Dissertation Supervisor, sign the Dissertation Defence Assessment form (Appendix 1). The candidate is required to complete minor revisions that do not necessitate substantial alteration of the content, argument, or implications of the thesis. Once revisions have been completed, the candidate can submit the Dissertation, according to the home institution's guidelines. The dissertation Supervisor will be entrusted to oversee the completion of these revisions and will withhold her/his signature from the Dissertation Defence Assessment form until the revisions identified at the defence are satisfactorily completed. The candidate must normally complete all revisions within one month of the defence.

3. Conditional pass with major revision

The External Examiner signs the Dissertation Defence Assessment form (Appendix 1), but Supervisory Committee members and Dissertation Supervisor do not. The candidate is required to complete major revisions that include alteration of the content, argument, or implications of the thesis. Once revisions have been completed, the candidate can submit the Dissertation, according to the home institution's guidelines. The Supervisory Committee will be entrusted to oversee the completion of these revisions and will withhold their signatures from the Dissertation Defence Assessment form until the revisions identified at the defence are finished. The candidate must complete all revisions within one month of the Dissertation defence.

4. Fail

The External Examiner and Supervisory Committee do not sign the Dissertation Defence Assessment form (Appendix 1) accepting the thesis. The candidate is required to withdraw from the PhD program and is not permitted to resubmit the dissertation for approval.

The candidate will be informed of the outcome immediately following the Committee's decision.

The Chair will then return Assessment Form and any other relevant materials to the IDAC Office and to the appropriate office of the home institution.
