

Inter-University Doctoral Program in Educational Studies

Overview of PhD Degree Structure

The Doctor of Philosophy (PhD) program in Educational Studies is a 7 unit or 42 credit hour program comprising 2.5 units or 15 credit hours of course work (more if deemed necessary at time of admission), a 1.5 unit or 9 credit hour Comprehensive Research/Scholarly Portfolio (with attendant examination) and a 3 unit or 18 credit hour Dissertation. Faculty research strengths and areas within which students can focus their studies revolve around six interrelated themes that mirror recurrent pedagogical issues with which educational studies are concerned: curriculum studies, educational foundations and leadership, inclusive education, lifelong learning, literacies, and the psychological aspects of education. Students can concurrently anchor their studies in their 'teachable subjects', if so desired. The degree conferred is a PhD in Educational Studies, not a PhD in any of the themes.

Course Work

Courses deal with: foundations of educational inquiry, research paradigms and methodologies, theories, research methods, and focused educational studies. Students also will receive 1.5 units/9 credit hours for completing a Comprehensive Portfolio and 3 units/18 credit hours for completing a Dissertation, N=7 units/42 credit hours. Students also may take (and may be required to take) Special Topics and Independent Studies, if deemed necessary at Admission. In some instances, doctoral students may arrange to enroll in an existing topic-related Master course(s), augmented with doctoral level analysis and applications.

Comprehensive Portfolio

The comprehensive portfolio examination will provide students with an opportunity to demonstrate the extent to which they have synthesized prior and emerging knowledge into a substantive conceptual, methodological and analytical awareness that enables them to successfully undertake and complete a research study that contributes to and extends scholarship within their academic discipline. Students will gather artifacts produced in the first four semesters of the program to demonstrate competence in five principal areas (see below). All elements of the portfolio will be initiated and completed as part of the doctoral program (i.e., work completed prior to the commencement of the program is ineligible). Normally, students will include two or three items from each of the five areas to a minimum of 10 and a maximum of 15 items:

Five Principal Areas of Competence to be Demonstrated in Portfolio

General Knowledge	In-Depth Knowledge	Research Knowledge and Competencies	Professional and Collegial Competencies	Teaching and Instructional Competencies
broad familiarity with/understanding of prominent social, scientific and educational theoretical traditions and trends related to educational studies	thorough and detailed knowledge of a range of issues in their specific doctoral focus area (theme(s))	research competence and critical analysis of current research and methodological issues	a range of professional competencies that will enhance active professional engagement	a range of teaching competencies demonstrative of readiness to assume the role of teacher and mentor in academia and other educational/training contexts

Proposal and Dissertation

Normally, within six months (but no more than one year) after completing the comprehensive portfolio examination, candidates will submit a research proposal for the approval of the Supervisory Committee via a public defense. The research presented in the dissertation should constitute a substantial and original contribution to the study of education. Candidates must publically defend their dissertation at a final dissertation defense (includes an external examiner) within three years after the comprehensive portfolio examination, but no later than five years after entering the doctoral program, unless an extension has been granted.

Doctoral Program in Educational Studies

Admission Requirements and Procedures

Admission Requirements

- An applicant will hold a Master degree from a recognized university in education or in a related field of study (i.e., a cognate discipline);
- An applicant will normally have completed a graduate thesis. Applicants who have not completed a graduate thesis in a field related to their doctoral studies will be required to submit evidence of their ability to undertake research in education through the completion of a qualifying research paper of sufficient depth and scope to reflect their research competence; More information about the QRP can be found here: <https://www.nsphteducation.ca/admissions/admission-requirements/qualifying-research-paper-qrp/>
- Scholarly preparation to conduct research, normally including graduate level courses in quantitative and/or qualitative research methods and design;
- Three letters of reference, normally including two academic and one professional reference;
- A recent curriculum vitae indicating current initiatives in education, and any academic, scholarly work to date;
- A letter of intent indicating a proposed area of study from among the six interrelated themes and main pedagogical issues of educational studies (i.e., curriculum studies, educational foundations and leadership, inclusive education, lifelong learning, literacies, and the psychological aspects of education). Faculty research interests are available at respective university websites;
- A minimum of A- or 80% average in their highest degree; and,
- An interview with a selection committee that is a subcommittee of the IDAC may be required.

Qualified applicants will be admitted only if a suitable supervisor and program can be provided.

Admissions Process

- Applicants apply to the Inter-University Doctoral Program, identifying potential supervisors (with an option to rank preference) through the Doctoral Program Office, postmarked by November 15th for July 1st entry;
- The IDAC will review all applications recommended by respective Doctoral Program Coordinators and, by majority agreement, recommend acceptance of applicants to the participating institutions (including the identity of an appropriate pro tem advisor);
- The home institution of the pro tem advisor will inform the applicant in writing after March 1st, regarding the decision of the IDAC, according to existing institutional policies. This home institution will then become the Institution of Record for that doctoral student;
- Each pro tem (temporary) research advisor (likely the dissertation supervisor) will arrange a meeting with successful applicant(s) who have been admitted to the home institution. The purpose of this meeting (there may be several) is both to confirm the Final Doctoral Program Plan of Study (courses required by the IDAC), to be submitted to the Doctoral Program Office for approval by August 15th. Normally, these meetings also will entail discussions about potential committee membership (form to be submitted by December 1st) and initial agreement on which artifacts will be included in the Portfolio (form to be submitted by April 1st of the following year).
- Wait pool letters and rejection letters normally will be mailed during the first week of March.

In addition to specific doctoral program requirements and regulations set out by the IDAC and the IDGC, doctoral students are bound by the regulations and procedures pertaining to graduate studies at their Home Institution of Record.

Glossary

Home University/Institution of Record – Students will receive a degree from one of the three participating institutions. Each student's home university is the institution where their supervisor is housed.

IDAC – Inter-University Doctoral Administration Committee – This committee comprises two representatives from each of the three participating institutions, and oversees the administration of the doctoral program.

Annual Admissions Quota – Normally, 10 students will be admitted each year: 4 at Mount Saint Vincent University, 3 at Acadia University and 3 at St. Francis Xavier University. Qualified applicants will be admitted only if a suitable supervisor and program can be provided.

Competitive Admissions – Normally, the IDAC will use a competitive admissions policy rather than a rolling admissions policy, but it can consider applicants on a case-by-case basis and may waive the fixed application date, if deemed warranted.

Diversity – A respect for the richness to scholarship that comes with student diversity will inform the admissions process. By necessity, the review of applications will be informed by the applicant's academic qualifications for a doctoral level program of study.

English Language Proficiency – To achieve success in this doctoral program, applicants will require strong reading, writing, and comprehension skills in the English language. This policy ensures each learner's ability to reach their full potential as a scholar and researcher.

Faculty member/applicant's prior relationship – When appropriate, a full disclosure statement of a prior relationship between the faculty member(s) and the applicant will be included in the individual's application package (signed by both).

Full-Time Status – The program is structured to be full-time, anticipating that students attending on a full-time basis can complete their degree within three-and-a-half to four years. Although the IDAC cannot prevent doctoral students from being gainfully employed during their residency period, it is inadvisable to do so given the intensity of studies during this timeframe, and the repercussions of failing a course.

The PhD in Educational Studies is offered jointly by Acadia University, Mount Saint Vincent University, and St. Francis Xavier University. Inter-University Doctoral Program students have the right to take courses and seminars and use the academic facilities of any of the three participating universities in accordance with their approved plan of study.

Completed forms should be emailed to phd@msvu.ca or mailed directly to:

POTENTIAL SUPERVISOR: Applicants are expected to consult with prospective supervisors at the three participating universities to determine goodness of fit with their intended doctoral research (see website for faculty research interests). Below, please identify potential supervisor(s) for your doctoral research. Note that applicants apply to the Inter-University Doctoral Program that is delivered collaboratively by the three partner institutions. They receive their degree from the university that is home to their supervisor (designated “home university” or “institution of record”).

If previously enrolled at any of the participating universities:

Student Number: _____ at: Acadia

Student Number: _____ at: Mount Saint Vincent

Student Number: _____ at: St. Francis Xavier

Note: Letter Of Intent and Initial Research Plan: The letter of intent and initial research plan is intended to indicate perceived goodness of fit between the applicant’s research interests and the research interests of potential supervisor(s) and the themes of the doctoral program. The letter of intent must include information organized under the following three headings:

1. Originality and expected contribution to knowledge
2. Clearly explained and focused theoretical research framework
3. Well-described and appropriate research methodology and method(s)

The purpose of the application process is to determine (1) the quality of the applicant’s intellectual and (2) academic preparation for doctoral studies as well as to determine (3) the availability of an academic supervisor for the applicant. Applicants are reminded that all three categories must be in place in order to recommend the acceptance of any application.

I understand that the above information will be used in evaluating my application.
